1820.005 Interested in studying the law? This seminar will introduce you to the UConn faculty who teach law-related courses and to the skills you need to pursue legal research and writing. Students will get the chance to talk with a range of guest speakers about such issues as: What is law school (along with the law school admissions process) like? What are some realities of being a corporate lawyer or a public defender? Why is a liberal arts major a good preparation for a legal career? And why do most of us seem to have a love/hate relationship to the law?
