

TO APPLY VISIT www.grad.uconn.edu

CONTACT US

Phone
860.486.3722

Email
histadm1@uconn.edu

Mail
History Department
University of Connecticut
241 Glenbrook Road
Storrs, CT 06269-2103

RESOURCES

In addition to a vast collection of related secondary materials held in the University's Homer Babbidge Library, the Archives & Special Collections Department of the Thomas J. Dodd Research Center houses a large number of special research collections in Puerto Rican and other Latin American and Caribbean histories and cultures. The University of Connecticut participates in the New England Consortium for Latin American Studies with Yale and Brown Universities and the University of Massachusetts. The Consortium provides our students access to expanded library borrowing privileges for special research projects at partner schools, as well as the option for graduate students to take classes at any of those institutions. Students and faculty also have the opportunity to attend and present their work at several different annual on-campus lecture series.

RELATED INSTITUTES AND CENTERS AT UCONN

Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies
Institute for Puerto Rican and Latino Studies
Puerto Rican/Latin American Cultural Center
Institute for African American Studies
Human Rights Institute
Humanities Institute

TO APPLY VISIT www.grad.uconn.edu

CONTACT US

Phone
860.486.3722

Email
histadm1@uconn.edu

Mail
History Department
University of Connecticut
241 Glenbrook Road
Storrs, CT 06269-2103

RESOURCES

In addition to a vast collection of related secondary materials held in the University's Homer Babbidge Library, the Archives & Special Collections Department of the Thomas J. Dodd Research Center houses a large number of special research collections in Puerto Rican and other Latin American and Caribbean histories and cultures. The University of Connecticut participates in the New England Consortium for Latin American Studies with Yale and Brown Universities and the University of Massachusetts. The Consortium provides our students access to expanded library borrowing privileges for special research projects at partner schools, as well as the option for graduate students to take classes at any of those institutions. Students and faculty also have the opportunity to attend and present their work at several different annual on-campus lecture series.

RELATED INSTITUTES AND CENTERS AT UCONN

Center for Latin American and Caribbean Studies
Institute for Puerto Rican and Latino Studies
Puerto Rican/Latin American Cultural Center
Institute for African American Studies
Human Rights Institute
Humanities Institute

Latin American,
Caribbean &
Latino History

University of Connecticut
History Department
241 Glenbrook Road
Storrs, CT 06269-2103

NON-PROFIT ORG.
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
STORRS, CT
PERMIT NO.3

University of Connecticut

Latin American, Caribbean & Latino History

STUDY HISTORY AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT

University of Connecticut

Latin American, Caribbean & Latino History

STUDY HISTORY AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT

Latin American,
Caribbean &
Latino History

University of Connecticut
History Department
241 Glenbrook Road
Storrs, CT 06269-2103

NON-PROFIT ORG.
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
STORRS, CT
PERMIT NO.3

LATIN AMERICAN, CARIBBEAN & LATINO HISTORY at the University of Connecticut

The graduate program in Latin American, Caribbean and Latino History at the University of Connecticut examines the study of societies, politics, cultures, and economies of the United States, Latin America, and the Caribbean from a hemispheric perspective. Our faculty shares a commitment to explore the cross-border, transnational experiences that link the Americas as well as their relationship to national and local histories. In our research and teaching, we aim to bridge divides among Latino, African Diaspora, and Latin American/Caribbean Studies approaches.

SELECTED COURSE OFFERINGS

- Empire, Nations, and Migration: Latinos in the U.S.
- The Making of the African Diaspora
- Medicine and Colonialism
- History of 20th Century U.S. Foreign Relations
- Topics in Latin American History
- Gender and Sexuality in Latin/o America
- Latin American Ethnohistory
- Historical Literature of Latin America
- Human Rights in Latin America
- Nationalism & Visual Culture in Latin America

GRADUATE STUDY IN HISTORY

The History Department offers graduate training in a variety of geographical and comparative fields, leading to both the M.A. and the Ph.D. degree. The department's areas of strength in the United States, Europe, Latin America, and comparative study are complemented by offerings in African, Asian, Middle Eastern, and Ancient history, as well as in topical areas. These include colonialism and imperialism, gender and sexuality, race and ethnicities, human rights, international relations, environmental history, ideas and ideologies, state and political culture, and science, medicine, and technology. Small seminars and an emphasis on departmental community facilitate maximum interaction between faculty and students.

PARTICIPATING FACULTY

- Karen Spalding
Andean History; Social and Ethnohistory; Colonial America; Social Movements
- Blanca G. Silvestrini
Puerto Rico, Colonial Medicine, Law and Society; Conceptions of Citizenship
- Melina Pappademos
20th Century African Diaspora; Cuba; Racial Consciousness, Political Cultures
- Mark Overmyer-Velázquez
Modern Mexico; U.S. Latino/as; Migration; Empire
- Paul B. Goodwin (Emeritus)
Argentina, Latin America and the World
- Frank Costigliola
U.S. Foreign Relations, Twentieth-Century U.S.
- Roger N. Buckley
Caribbean and British Imperial History

TO LEARN MORE VISIT <http://web.uconn.edu/lacih>

LATIN AMERICAN, CARIBBEAN & LATINO HISTORY at the University of Connecticut

The graduate program in Latin American, Caribbean and Latino History at the University of Connecticut examines the study of societies, politics, cultures, and economies of the United States, Latin America, and the Caribbean from a hemispheric perspective. Our faculty shares a commitment to explore the cross-border, transnational experiences that link the Americas as well as their relationship to national and local histories. In our research and teaching, we aim to bridge divides among Latino, African Diaspora, and Latin American/Caribbean Studies approaches.

SELECTED COURSE OFFERINGS

- Empire, Nations, and Migration: Latinos in the U.S.
- The Making of the African Diaspora
- Medicine and Colonialism
- History of 20th Century U.S. Foreign Relations
- Topics in Latin American History
- Gender and Sexuality in Latin/o America
- Latin American Ethnohistory
- Historical Literature of Latin America
- Human Rights in Latin America
- Nationalism & Visual Culture in Latin America

GRADUATE STUDY IN HISTORY

The History Department offers graduate training in a variety of geographical and comparative fields, leading to both the M.A. and the Ph.D. degree. The department's areas of strength in the United States, Europe, Latin America, and comparative study are complemented by offerings in African, Asian, Middle Eastern, and Ancient history, as well as in topical areas. These include colonialism and imperialism, gender and sexuality, race and ethnicities, human rights, international relations, environmental history, ideas and ideologies, state and political culture, and science, medicine, and technology. Small seminars and an emphasis on departmental community facilitate maximum interaction between faculty and students.

PARTICIPATING FACULTY

- Karen Spalding
Andean History; Social and Ethnohistory; Colonial America; Social Movements
- Blanca G. Silvestrini
Puerto Rico, Colonial Medicine, Law and Society; Conceptions of Citizenship
- Melina Pappademos
20th Century African Diaspora; Cuba; Racial Consciousness, Political Cultures
- Mark Overmyer-Velázquez
Modern Mexico; U.S. Latino/as; Migration; Empire
- Paul B. Goodwin (Emeritus)
Argentina, Latin America and the World
- Frank Costigliola
U.S. Foreign Relations, Twentieth-Century U.S.
- Roger N. Buckley
Caribbean and British Imperial History

TO LEARN MORE VISIT <http://web.uconn.edu/lacih>