The last fiscal year ended June 30 in a record $255.6 million deficit. Depending on the estimate, the state government is running a shortfall of $385.6 million, $466.5 million or $625 million this year.

Rell based her plan on her budget office’s deficit estimate of $466.5 million.

Municipalities have been urging Rell and lawmakers not to reduce municipal aid. On Tuesday, the statewide lobbying group urged the legislature to reject the governor’s recommendation.

The governor’s plan doesn’t specify the reductions. Instead, Rell plans to appoint a panel of lawmakers and six outside experts to lead into the tree lightings,” she said. “It’s something I’ve been interested in a long time,” he said, of the town’s history.
